Overview

With the recent rise in energy prices around the world, cheap clean energy alternatives are in high demand! The good news is that solar energy prices have significantly dropped in. Most solar panels have an energy efficiency rating between 11-15%, which translates to the percentage of energy that can be converted into electricity. However, there are. What if it's a cloudy day or raining?

This is one of the biggest doubts most people have, but even with bad weather electricity can be produced by solar power. On average, solar panels generate 30%-50% and 10%-20% of their full potential on cloudy days and days with heavy rain, respectively. And did you know that there are already industrial-scale. Solar panels usually operate at a high efficiency for the first 25-30 years, but you can already begin to see a return on your investment and savings around 6 years after installation. After this 30-year period, performance will degrade, but your panels will never completely stop converting sunlight into solar energy. According to Scientific American, solar is the most abundant energy resource on our planet and the amount of sunlight that hits the earth's surface in just 90 minutes is enough to power energy consumption around the world for an entire year! Moreover, solar energy dominates all other renewable resources combined (e.g., wind, hydropower).
